

NETWORK ROUTE CONTROL

Abstract of the Disclosure

The use of multi-homing to multiple network providers to improve performance of network applications is disclosed. In accordance with the present invention, a general purpose computer performs primary route control functions, without requiring a special 5 route control device. Route selection is made in accordance with desired metrics which may include relevant to performance, availability, or cost.